We're FSC certified.

Intellicor is certified by the Forest Stewardship Council (FSC) as a printer that uses responsibly sourced paper.

What does FSC certification mean for the environment? The FSC forest management standards protect our natural resources and prohibit the harvest of old growth forests. FSC certified paper is natural, easily recycled and helps prevent the pollution of landfills and oceans. By providing sustainably sourced paper, we offer responsible choices to our clients who want to demonstrate their commitment to the environment.

We use plant-based, low-VOC inks.

Inks made from soy, linseed, and other oil-producing plants are better for the environment. Unlike petroleum-based inks, plant-based inks have low levels of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) which contribute to the greenhouse effect. Plant-based inks require less carbon to manufacture, are sustainable, and make paper recycling easier.

We recycle.

We're one of Lancaster County's largest suppliers of recycled paper generated by our printing and binding operations. All waste paper from our equipment is carefully sorted, collected, shredded, and baled so it can be used by paper mills in the manufacturing of recycled paper grades. This practice is followed for all corrugated and plastic packaging materials, as well.

We comply with all environmental guidelines.

We operate in full compliance with all local, state, and federal guidelines regarding the purchase, use, storage, and disposal of all raw materials used in the production of our various products. This includes, but is not limited to: paper, ink, plates, glue, stitcher wire, solvents, and packing materials.

We continue to explore partnerships with vendors that enable us to run a "greener" business and offer sustainable solutions to our clients.

Locally Owned. Nationally Recognized.
